The table below summarizes the Receiving Zones that have been approved under the 2004 and 2007 TDU ordinances. Under these ordinances the process of severing density from a sending zone was separated from the process of adding density to a receiving zone, whereas under the TDR ordinance a receiving zone and sending zone were simultaneously approved. Under the 2004 and 2007 ordinances this was changed to allow receiving zones to be approved and density transferred to the site later, prior to final Planned Development detail approval. This new process allowed developers to seek approval of density increases without incurring costs associated with purchasing or finding density to transfer when they were unsure of the actual need for this density.
